Japanese Lose Six Warships In Big Naval Clash Near Japan

The War Today..

THE FIERCENESS of the German resistance to the Russian assault on Vienna gives special point to a question which has been put to me many times recently—why have the Hitlerites defended their eastern front so much more strongly than they have the Rhineland?

There are several reasons for this. German strategy which much of the time has maintained on the Russian front double the number of troops opposite the British. The popular supposition is that the Germans are afraid of the retribution which the Russians might exact for the German atrocities in Soviet territory. The Nazis have massacred, pillaged and burned, and carried away countless civilians to the Reich for slave labor.

Along this same line of thought, from the moment Hitler came to power he began to instill terror of the "Bolsheviks" in his people. Daily he shouted warnings until he succeeded so well that many folk were in deadly fear of the Russians.

However, that's not the whole story. The Hitlerian intuition figured that the Western Allies could stand off much easier than the Russians because of the nature of the Reich's inner fortress. The Oder line of defenses along the Eastern frontier were powerful, but the much-sung Siegfried fortifications, backed by the mighty Rhine, were supposed to be impregnable.

Then too the Oder line was vastly nearer Berlin and the heart of the country than were the Rhineland defenses. Another reason for stout defense of the Oder line has been that its continuation through Czechoslovakia and into Hungary protected the Austrian back-door into Germany, and it was in this neighboring Bavaria that Hitler planned to make his last stand—if worse came to worse. That southern flank also protected the great Skoda armament works in Czechoslovakia, important war industries in Hungary and still others in Austria.

Moreover, Hitler all along has been afraid of a revolt among the Austrian people whom he annexed against their will. On the whole one scarcely can find fault with this Hitlerian assay of the potentialities of that right flank. Hungary has been lost to him, and Red troops have stormed into both Czechoslovakia and Austria. His last-stand Alpine fortress is in grave danger.

I dare say that if Hitler's intuition could make a blind-sight analysis now it would advise him that he should have withdrawn to his inner fortress much sooner. He had plenty of warning that the game was up before D-day in Normandy. Had he pulled back all his forces there's no telling how much he might have strung the war out.

3 U.S. Destroyers Go Down In Battle

By LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, April 7.—Six Japanese warships, including their largest remaining battleship—the 45,000-ton Yamato, and 391 enemy planes were destroyed in a two-day battle between planes and surface units of the two fleets yesterday and today, only 50 miles from Japan, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced.

Three United States destroyers were sunk, several others and some smaller craft damaged. Seven planes were lost.

Japanese fleet losses in addition to the battleship were an Agano class light cruiser, one other light cruiser and three destroyers.

The battle opened Friday afternoon in the vicinity of Okinawa. Three destroyers were sunk and several damaged. One hundred and sixteen Jap planes were shot down.

SEA, AIR ACTION COST JAPS FOURTH OF COMBAT FORCE

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 7.—A "good 25 per cent of the remaining Japanese major combat force" was lost or put out of action in the naval-air engagement announced by Fleet Admiral Nimitz, an official Navy spokesman said today.

The new losses, he said, leave the Japanese with "a task force that can be handled very easily by any of our major task forces."

In the engagement fought some 50 miles off the southwest coast of the Japanese home island of Kyushu, the enemy lost one of its newest and most powerful battleships, two cruisers and three destroyers.

Three other destroyers were reported left burning and three escaped.

Emergence of the Japanese force, the naval spokesman said, was presumably an offensive action since it was made up entirely of fast ships. The possibility remained, however, that it was merely an effort to escape to more tenable waters.

"Obviously," he said, "the Japanese fleet did not like its position in the inland sea which was becoming more and more untenable. Damage inflicted by our striking air forces and observation from the air was very discouraging to them."

The spokesman speculated that there was a possibility the enemy was seeking to retire to more remote positions north of the home islands.

American naval forces, he added, have been able to keep close watch of Japanese fleet movements for some time.

Asserting the inland sea was "getting hotter and hotter for them," he said:

"They must have known they were going to lose them eventually anyway and the fact that it was a very fast force indicated they hoped they could get in a fast hit and run raid and get away."

The battleship Yamato, which was sunk, was one of the most powerful in the world, roughly equivalent to the American 45,000-ton Iowa, both in age and characteristics.

Camp Livingston troops were sent to help hold the Cane River levee, where engineers said a critical situation existed.

A thousand German prisoners of war are being used to sandbag Red river levees. In many places the entire populations of towns pitched in with shovels and sacks.

Relief agency officials expected the refugee list to increase daily since the floor crests are several days away.

To rescue marooned and trapper families army assault boats, nevel amphibious planes, Coast Guard cutters and helicopters are being used. A big plane from Barksdale field dropped rafts to persons stranded on rooftops at East Point.

The Red Cross estimated more than 5,000 families were homeless in central Louisiana and at least that many more were threatened along the Red river.

WANTED: CARRIERS FOR TWO EXCELLENT ROUTES IN SOUTH-EAST SECTION OF SALEM. APPLY AT ONCE. SALEM NEWS OFFICE.

Early today Navy search aircraft sighted an enemy surface force at a point about 50 miles southwest of Kyushu, southernmost Japanese island. Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier force brought the enemy under aerial attack at midday.

Hit by 8 Torpedoes, 8 Bombs

The Yamato, reported damaged last month in a carrier raid off Japan's inland sea and last October in the battle of Leyte gulf when her sister ship, the Mutsu, was sunk, went down after being hit by eight torpedoes and eight bombs.

The continuing attack finished off the light Agano class cruiser, the small cruiser and three destroyers. Three destroyers were left burning and about three others escaped the attack. All of the ships were strafed heavily with rockets and machine guns.

Seven carrier aircraft were lost in this action.

The carrier aircraft had destroyed 245 other enemy aircraft in separate actions Friday and added 30 more in minor contacts today.

The task groups participating were commanded by Rear Admirals F. C. Sherman, A. W. Radford, G. F. Bogar and J. J. Clark.

Advance On Okinawa

Ground action on Okinawa saw Third Amphibious Corps Marines continue their relatively easy progress to the north where strong enemy resistance developed on the southern front where 24th Army corps soldiers are driving toward the island's largest city, Naha, and Machinato airstrip.

The Japanese fought from strong defense positions with machine guns, small arms, mortar and artillery fire, which was particularly heavy.

Troops along the east coast of this sector advanced about 2,000 yards during yesterday afternoon and occupied the town of Tawwa. Heavy supporting artillery fire was brought to bear on the enemy.

44 GERMAN PLANES ARE SHOT DOWN

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, April 7.—At least 44 German planes were shot down today as the Nazis pressed frantic attacks against 1,300 American heavy bombers and 850 fighters making a sweep of airfields, ammunition dumps and railroads ahead of Allied armies rolling across northern Germany.

The number of German planes destroyed was expected to mount considerably as the 44 represented claims from only a part of the fighter groups and none from the bombers, a United States Air Force staff officer said.

Heavy combat occurred within 50 miles of Hamburg, in the district where several of today's targets were located.

At the same time Italian-based planes of the 15th Air Force attacked rail lines and other communications in northern Italy for the third straight day.

Objectives of the Britain-based bombers and fighters included four jet-propelled plane bases, three ordnance and ammunition storage depots, an oil storage depot at Hitzacker and railroad marshalling yards at Luneburg, near Hamburg and Neumuenster.

Crime Career Ends In Death For Two

COLUMBUS, April 7.—Two Cincinnati Negroes whose lives from early childhood were marked by brushes with the law, died in Ohio's electric chair last night for the hammer slaying of jeweler Jacob Reinmiller in his Cincinnati store last April 10.

Calmly, impassively, James Willie Brown, 28, and James Cook Jenkins, 24, walked to their deaths 12 hours after Gov. Lausche spared the life—for 30 days at least—of Johnnie Mae Gardner, 21, indicted for the same crime.

Brown, the first to die, hobbled into the death chamber on crutches and was pronounced dead 10 minutes later by Dr. E. C. Eckstrom.

Jenkins followed Chaplain Louis Kelly into the chamber, haltingly at first and then with a firm step, as guards guided him to the chair he said:

"I want to speak before I die."

Father Kelly, however, admonished him: "No, Jenkins, just pray."

The muscular Negro mumbled prayers, and then repeated futilely "Will you let me tell you what I want to tell you?" Two seconds later the current hit him.

Seven newspapermen, three physicians, two representatives of the Hamilton county sheriff's office and prison officials witnessed the execution.

Other winners included Robert Binsley of Lisbon, first; Ben Jackson of East Palestine, fourth, and Robert Williams of Lisbon, fifth.

Joint indictments were brought against two Salem youths, Richard Slesser and John Paul Kistler for burglary and larceny. They were charged with having stolen cash and sundry articles from the Salem High school.

Kistler was also jointly indicted with Henry Theodore Sobolewski for burglary and larceny of Groner's gas station in Salem.

Hubert Hardman, East Palestine, was charged with auto theft.

The case of Paul L. Merriman, George McKinnon, Gerald Myler and Robert McKinnon for burglarizing several offices in East Liverpool was continued by the grand jury.

British Now Only 12 Miles From Bremen

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, April 7.—American tanks struck to within 10 miles of Hannover today in a break-out from their Weser bridgehead, and British armor fought less than 12 miles from the great port of Bremen.

Both Allied advances bearing down on the great northern German cities still were going strong this afternoon.

The United States Ninth army lashed out from Hamelin on the Weser river and careened eight miles toward Hannover (472,500). The British plume carried 35 miles, flanking Bremen (342,000) and hitting to within 60 miles of Hamburg, Germany's third city.

The German high command declared a fierce battle was raging in the United States Third army territory east of Muehlhausen and within 130 miles or less of Berlin.

This is near the Eisleben area in which the Germans yesterday had announced airborne operations within 90 miles of Berlin.

The British tanks flanked the great Weser river port of Bremen and struck to within 60 miles of Hamburg on the Elbe.

Buck Fever

Some of the recent actions of statesmen—the gentlemen Bernard W. Baruch recently called “big boys” in a London interview—look like seizures of buck fever.

For those who never had it, buck fever comes from trying too hard. It afflicts most painfully those who must perform difficult tasks in public—ball players, public speakers, actors and, apparently, statesmen.

It is what makes nervous infielders throw the ball before they have hold of it, actors forget their lines, speakers choke on the lumps in their throats. Its symptom in statesmen, apparently, is to make them over-eager to win a point that isn't worth winning.

If statesmen have it, and they can't be blamed, considering the pressure they are under, the rest of us will have to hope for the best. They had it a generation ago at Versailles and lost the game with their bungles.

To get down to names and cases, if Premier Stalin continues to crowd the plate, Prime Minister Churchill continues to watch the grandstand, and President Roosevelt continues to call for signals over, mistakes are going to be a dime a dozen with no takers.

Americans, of course, can't be responsible for any statesmen but their own, but for their own they could wish for more evidence of poise, a little less evidence of anxiety to please everybody. American interests are not wholly at the mercy of Russia and Great Britain. This government has every right to ask that these governments meet it halfway. We do not have to buy all this nation's friendship with lend-lease and easy loans.

The most disturbing thing on the international scene today, for Americans, is evidence that other governments are giving Mr. Roosevelt and his assistants in statesmanship the cooling-off treatment which old hands reserve for “eager beavers”. There is a home-made American cure for this situation. It is the technique of a game more popular in this country than anywhere else, a game Americans play better than anyone else—poker.

America holds a strong hand for any showdown events may call for. It holds a hand strong enough to justify any challenge to what may seem to be a bluff when Americans say they want genuine co-operative security if possible—and if it isn't possible will get security on their own terms.

Hara-Kiri For A Nation

Russia's denunciation of its neutrality pact with Japan gives the Japanese something else to think about, though it may be guessed they have little time to spare on worry about possibilities when they are grappling with so many momentous actualities.

A reasonable guess is that they can do nothing more than they already have done. Circumstances have put them in a fatal squeeze of expanding influences on two sides. They cannot prepare any more extensively than they already have prepared to go to war with Russia without weakening themselves at home, where they are threatened by an American invasion. If they strengthen themselves at home at the expense of weakening themselves on the Russian frontier, they will be in immediate danger of Russian attack. Japan is caught between Russian power in Asia and American power in the Pacific ocean. Its military position is untenable, and there is no room for retreat.

This is the whirlwind Japan is reaping from the murdering militarists who chanced Pearl Harbor on the supposition that Russia would be whipped by Germany during 1942. It is small wonder the internal organization of the nation is falling apart; the great wonder will be any kind of reorganization by men now so completely discredited that hara-kiri offers the only escape from disgrace. It would not be too surprising if a kind of mass military hara-kiri were the ultimate result; if the weight of too many insoluble problems at once and the prospect of worse to come were to end the Japanese war adventure as soon as, perhaps sooner than, the war in Europe.

April 6, 1917

In the 28 years that have elapsed since the United States reluctantly confirmed the fact that Germany had gone to war against it, World War I has been so absorbed in the larger pattern of World War II that the first war's historic dates are becoming obscure. Even in the interval between the two stages of world conflict, April 6, 1917, when President Wilson signed the joint resolution of Congress declaring a “state of war between the United States and the Imperial German government,” was not regarded as the memorable event of World War I. That distinction was reserved for Nov. 11, 1918.

Today, by hindsight, it is clear that this nation's acknowledgment of hostilities already being carried on by Germany in the spring of 1917 joined an international issue only now being settled. It aligned the United States permanently against Germany's campaign of conquest, suspended on Nov. 11, 1918, renewed in the autumn of 1939. The second declaration of war on the same grounds, on Dec. 11, 1941, was merely a reaffirmation of opposition to an intolerable scheme conceived long before 1914 and which will endure beyond 1945, if Germany is permitted to put it into effect.

Sheep In Werewolves' Clothing

It was reasonable to suppose that a Nazi underground would develop in the wake of the Allied advance, that it would be made up of party fanatics, and that it would have the Hitler-Himmler blessing. From what can be learned, the new Werewolf terrorist organization fills the bill.

But it scarcely seemed reasonable that the Nazis, having launched such a movement, would have the brass to disown it. That, however, is what happened—the very day after they had identified the organization by name.

This is an obvious, transparent, naive attempt of the Nazi leaders to win a little stay of execution. Toward the end, it would seem that the Nazis' once shrewd propaganda is suffering the same dissolution as the Wehrmacht.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, April 8

SUNDAY'S horoscope promises a pleasant and happy state of affairs, with the accent on private, social, domestic, intellectual and romantic interests holding the attention rather than any business matters, unless they concern those. It is a favorable time to curry favor, seek preferment or approval from those in powerful positions, as these are amenable to pleas.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a pleasant year in which the private or social life may be important, although all pertaining to business may be favorably received by higher-ups whose cooperation is vital to success. There may be minor changes in seeking business, jobs or new contracts but keep alert to intrigues and suspicious circumstances. Be square.

A child born on this day may have fair talents and ambitions, winning support from those in influence. It may be duped easily or drawn into intrigues.

For Monday, April 9

MONDAY'S astrological forecast holds augury of a sudden and surprising disruption or separation, a sort of spading up prior to a rebuilding on sound, enduring and more desirable plans for future security and comfort. Static situations long thwarting ideas and ambitions, will suddenly cave in, to make way for practical and worthwhile efforts and solidarity. Move deliberately and not rashly or with impetuosity, lest strife and enmity ensue.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of sudden and radical upheaval, which will make way for eventual solidification of plans and purposes, with security and enduring good, after a period of stagnation and defeat. Practical and shrewd endeavors should be calmly marshaled with precision and concentration and not impetuously and rashly, as these invite quarrels and enmity.

A child born on this day will have many serious and sound talents with practical abilities to new success from devastating circumstances or strange situations.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Rabies, A Deadly, But Not Frequent Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

RABIES is a disease produced by the bite of a mad animal, especially of a mad or rabid dog. Medically, it is known as “hydrophobia,” “hydro” meaning water and “phobia” meaning fear. In rabies, one of the symptoms is fear of and inability to swallow liquids.

Hydrophobia is not a major public health problem in the United States. It would appear that the annual number of cases in human beings averages slightly under 100 per year. However, in a person who has just been bitten by a dog the possibility of rabies developing is a very serious matter to him since the disease, once it develops, is always fatal.

Rabies is caused by a filtrable virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter. The virus is found in the saliva, in the salivary glands and in certain nervous tissues. The virus is transmitted through a bite and, rarely, by contamination of an open wound by infected saliva.

Affected By Rabies

Such animals as dogs, wolves, foxes, coyotes, hyenas and jackals may be affected by rabies, but through the bites of these animals it may be transmitted to other animals such as horses, mules, cows, skunks, sheep and pigs. Rabies has never been known to be transmitted from one human being to another.

Local outbreaks of rabies occur from time to time in various parts of the United States. It is not a seasonal disease. There is no relationship between the disorder and the so-called “dog days.”

About one out of every six persons who is bitten by a rabid dog will develop rabies if no preventive measures are taken, but the chances of developing the disease will depend on the number of bites, the type of wound, whether the bitten part was covered or bare when the biting occurred and upon the animal doing the biting. The danger decreases in the following order: Wolves, cats, dogs and other animals.

The time at which the disease will develop varies, depending on where the bite is located. The period is shortest for bites on the face and longer for those on the foot, and the period is shorter in children than in grownups. For most human cases, the period varies from 20 to 90 days, the shortest being 12 and the longest 113 days.

If the animal causing a bite is obviously rabid, if the animal cannot be caught, or if the bite is on the face or neck, injections of anti-rabic vaccine should be begun at once and completed within 14 days if possible.

If, in other instances, the animal has been caught, and at the end of 14 days he is still well, no anti-rabic vaccine need be used, or if treatment has already been started in the case of a face or neck bite the treatment may be stopped. If the animal dies before 14 days, the brain should at once be examined and if a positive diagnosis of rabies is made, vaccine should be injected immediately.

Rep. Lewis Demands Curb On Imports To Protect Potteries

Special To The News

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Experts in and out of government fear a flood of cheap merchandise from abroad after the war—a problem vital to Ohio.

Notwithstanding some suggestions that a free flow of commerce is necessary to world prosperity, many congressmen are calling for action now to choke off imports of commodities that undersell United States enterprise.

Ohio's great earthenware and glass industries, centering at East Liverpool, Salem and Steubenville, are particularly interested because their products are among those that can be produced abroad and sold in the United States at prices much lower than are possible under American standards.

Rep. Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville is demanding legislation to cut down imports when peace comes.

“The menace,” he said in an interview, “is seen in the Far East as well as in Europe. We need duties high enough to force foreigners to sell their goods on a basis of our values.

“This would not be unfair. It merely would give us an even break in our own markets. It would protect worker and employer alike.”

Offers Two Bills

Lewis has two bills to permit imports only on a quota basis with equalizing duties. The number of pieces of earthen and glassware would be limited to 10 per cent of pieces produced in the United States the annual average number of such during the 1933-1937 depression years.

His legislation proposes stiff duties ranging from 10 to 85 per cent of value. Hundreds of articles would be covered, among them pottery, glass, biological, chemical, metallurgical, pharmaceutical and surgical articles of all kinds, tubes, table and kitchen utensils, eyeglasses and goggles, electric light bulbs. The measures would amend the tariff act of 1930 under which Lewis asserts too many cheap articles were allowed to enter the United States in competition with home industry. He also wants to eliminate the power of the President to make certain adjustments in tariff rates, up or down.

“This isn't a problem that can be put off,” Lewis said. “We must head off huge imports as soon as Europe can produce. And this won't be long because we have Hitler on the run and are about to place a noose around his neck.”

Buck Fever

Some of the recent actions of statesmen—the gentlemen Bernard W. Baruch recently called “big boys” in a London interview—look like seizures of buck fever.

For those who never had it, buck fever comes from trying too hard. It afflicts most painfully those who must perform difficult tasks in public—ball players, public speakers, actors and, apparently, statesmen.

It is what makes nervous infidels throw the ball before they have hold of it, actors forget their lines, speakers choke on the lumps in their throats. Its symptom in statesmen, apparently, is to make them over-eager to win a point that isn't worth winning.

If statesmen have it, and they can't be blamed, considering the pressure they are under, the rest of us will have to hope for the best. They had it a generation ago at Versailles and lost the game with their bungles.

To get down to names and cases, if Premier Stalin continues to crowd the plate, Prime Minister Churchill continues to watch the grandstand, and President Roosevelt continues to call for signals over, mistakes are going to be a dime a dozen with no takers.

Americans, of course, can't be responsible for any statesmen but their own, but for their own they could wish for more evidence of poise, a little less evidence of anxiety to please everybody. American interests are not wholly at the mercy of Russia and Great Britain. This government has every right to ask that these governments meet it halfway. We do not have to buy all this nation's friendship with lend-lease and easy loans.

The most disturbing thing on the international scene today, for Americans, is evidence that other governments are giving Mr. Roosevelt and his assistants in statesmanship the cooling-off treatment which old hands reserve for “eager beavers”. There is a home-made American cure for this situation. It is the technique of a game more popular in this country than anywhere else, a game Americans play better than anyone else—poker.

America holds a strong hand for any showdown events may call for. It holds a hand strong enough to justify any challenge to what may seem to be a bluff when Americans say they want genuine co-operative security if possible—and if it isn't possible will get security on their own terms.

Hara-Kiri For A Nation

Russia's denunciation of its neutrality pact with Japan gives the Japanese something else to think about, though it may be guessed they have little time to spare on worry about possibilities when they are grappling with so many momentous actualities.

A reasonable guess is that they can do nothing more than they already have done. Circumstances have put them in a fatal squeeze of expanding influences on two sides. They cannot prepare any more extensively than they already have prepared to go to war with Russia without weakening themselves at home, where they are threatened by an American invasion. If they strengthen themselves at home at the expense of weakening themselves on the Russian frontier, they will be in immediate danger of Russian attack. Japan is caught between Russian power in Asia and American power in the Pacific ocean. Its military position is untenable, and there is no room for retreat.

This is the whirlwind Japan is reaping from the murdering militarists who chanced Pearl Harbor on the supposition that Russia would be whipped by Germany during 1942. It is small wonder the internal organization of the nation is falling apart; the great wonder will be any kind of reorganization by men now so completely discredited that hara-kiri offers the only escape from disgrace. It would not be too surprising if a kind of mass military hara-kiri were the ultimate result; if the weight of too many insoluble problems at once and the prospect of worse to come were to end the Japanese war adventure as soon as, perhaps sooner than, the war in Europe.

In the 28 years that have elapsed since the United States reluctantly confirmed the fact that Germany had gone to war against it, World War I has been so absorbed in the larger pattern of World War II that the first war's historic dates are becoming obscure. Even in the interval between the two stages of world conflict, April 6, 1917, when President Wilson signed the joint resolution of Congress declaring a “state of war between the United States and the Imperial German government,” was not regarded as the memorable event of World War I. That distinction was reserved for Nov. 11, 1918.

Today, by hindsight, it is clear that this nation's acknowledgment of hostilities already being carried on by Germany in the spring of 1917 joined an international issue only now being settled. It aligned the United States permanently against Germany's campaign of conquest, suspended on Nov. 11, 1918, renewed in the autumn of 1939. The second declaration of war on the same grounds, on Dec. 11, 1941, was merely a reaffirmation of opposition to an intolerable scheme conceived long before 1914 and which will endure beyond 1945, if Germany is permitted to put it into effect.

Sheep In Werewolves' Clothing

It was reasonable to suppose that a Nazi underground would develop in the wake of the Allied advance, that it would be made up of party fanatics, and that it would have the Hitler-Himmler blessing. From what can be learned, the new Werewolf terrorist organization fills the bill.

But it scarcely seemed reasonable that the Nazis, having launched such a movement, would have the brass to disown it. That, however, is what happened—the very day after they had identified the organization by name.

This is an obvious, transparent, naive attempt of the Nazi leaders to win a little stay of execution. Toward the end, it would seem that the Nazis' once shrewd propaganda is suffering the same dissolution as the Wehrmacht.

Rabies, A Deadly, But Not Frequent Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

RABIES is a disease produced by the bite of a mad animal, especially of a mad or rabid dog. Medically, it is known as “hydrophobia,” meaning water and “phobia” meaning fear. In rabies, one of the symptoms is fear of and inability to swallow liquids.

Hydrophobia is not a major public health problem in the United States. It would appear that the annual number of cases in human beings averages slightly under 100 per year. However, in a person who has just been bitten by a dog, the possibility of rabies developing is a very serious matter to him since the disease, once it develops, is always fatal.

Rabies is caused by a filtrable virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter. The virus is found in the saliva, in the salivary glands and in certain nervous tissues. The virus is transmitted through a bite and, rarely, by contamination of an open wound by infected saliva.

Affected By Rabies

Such animals as dogs, wolves, foxes, coyotes, hyenas and jackals may be affected by rabies, but through the bites of these animals it may be transmitted to other animals such as horses, mules, cows, skunks, sheep and pigs. Rabies has never been known to be transmitted from one human being to another.

Local outbreaks of rabies occur from time to time in various parts of the United States. It is not a seasonal disease. There is no relationship between the disorder and the so-called “dog days.”

About one out of every six persons who is bitten by a rabid dog will develop rabies if no preventive measures are taken, but the chances of developing the disease will depend on the number of bites, the type of wound, whether the bitten part was covered or bare when the biting occurred and upon the animal doing the biting. The danger decreases in the following order: Wolves, cats, dogs and other animals.

The time at which the disease will develop varies, depending on where the bite is located. The period is shortest for bites on the face and longer for those on the foot, and the period is shorter in children than in grownups. For most human cases, the period varies from 20 to 90 days, the shortest being 12 and the longest 113 days.

If the animal causing a bite is obviously rabid, if the animal cannot be caught, or if the bite is on the face or neck, injections of anti-rabic vaccine should be begun at once and completed within 14 days if possible.

If, in other instances, the animal has been caught, and at the end of 14 days he is still well, no anti-rabic vaccine need be used, or if treatment has already been started in the case of a face or neck bite the treatment may be stopped. If the animal dies before 14 days, the brain should at once be examined and if a positive diagnosis of rabies is made, vaccine should be injected immediately.

Death's BRIGHT DIAMONDS

by Lionel Mosher

XXVIII

When I turned in at the cemetery gate for the second time that day it was almost dark and there was no sun to help me find my way. The rain had turned to snow.

I parked my car under a great old tree and shut off the motor. The wind had risen and I heard it keening mournfully in the branches overhead. I walked slowly away from my car, feeling the ground with my feet and staring against the curtain of night and snow.

Suddenly I saw the monument ahead of me, dimly white in the gathering darkness.

Then I felt the ground, soft and cool under my feet. I looked down and saw under the fresh-turned earth of Phineas Hudson's grave. Quickly I stepped off and turned toward the monument again when something caught my eye. I turned back and looked more closely.

The grave looked odd. It seemed unusually untidy. As a matter of fact it was not completely filled in. There was a little mound of dirt beside the grave. I stared at that mound and I began to think about it. A couple of savings of the shovel would have spread the earth evenly, if loosely, over the grave.

I leaned down, moved my hand across the dirt, and felt a hollow in the soil, a hollow, scooped-out, unnatural and unmistakable. At first I merely looked at it curiously. But the more I looked at it, the odder I felt. Then I had a horrible conviction. It swept over me like the cold wind of a sea-storm. The sweat broke out on my forehead. I stood up and looked around. And all the while that hard question kept hammering in my brain. Who had been digging in Phineas Hudson's new-made grave?

Urges Cautious Use Of Penicillin When It Is Sold to Public

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 6.—The "wonder drug," Penicillin, may become plentiful enough before long to appear in capsule, tablet or other forms in your neighborhood drug store, but don't waste your money on it for self-treatment, the State Health department admonished Ohioans today.

Penicillin has no effect on some diseases, and inadequate doses might make a person more difficult to cure of other ailments later if he treats himself, Health Director Roger E. Heering explained.

Too, the drug is too scarce and too useful to be wasted, he added.

Penicillin has been in use about two years, largely by the military. It soon may be plentiful enough for sale to the public in the form of nose drops, throat sprays, lozenges and ointments, as well as in tablet form, he said.

The drug has no apparent effect on infantile paralysis, tuberculosis, rabbit fever or typhoid, he pointed out.

Penicillin has been found most effective, Dr. Heering said, in treating such diseases as meningitis, syphilis, gonorrhea, certain types of pneumonia and blood poisoning.

Dosages of Penicillin insufficient to cure a sinus infection, for example, might create a resistance to the drug so that it would not be fully effective later in treating that person for meningitis should an extension of that disease from the sinus take place, Dr. Heering explained.

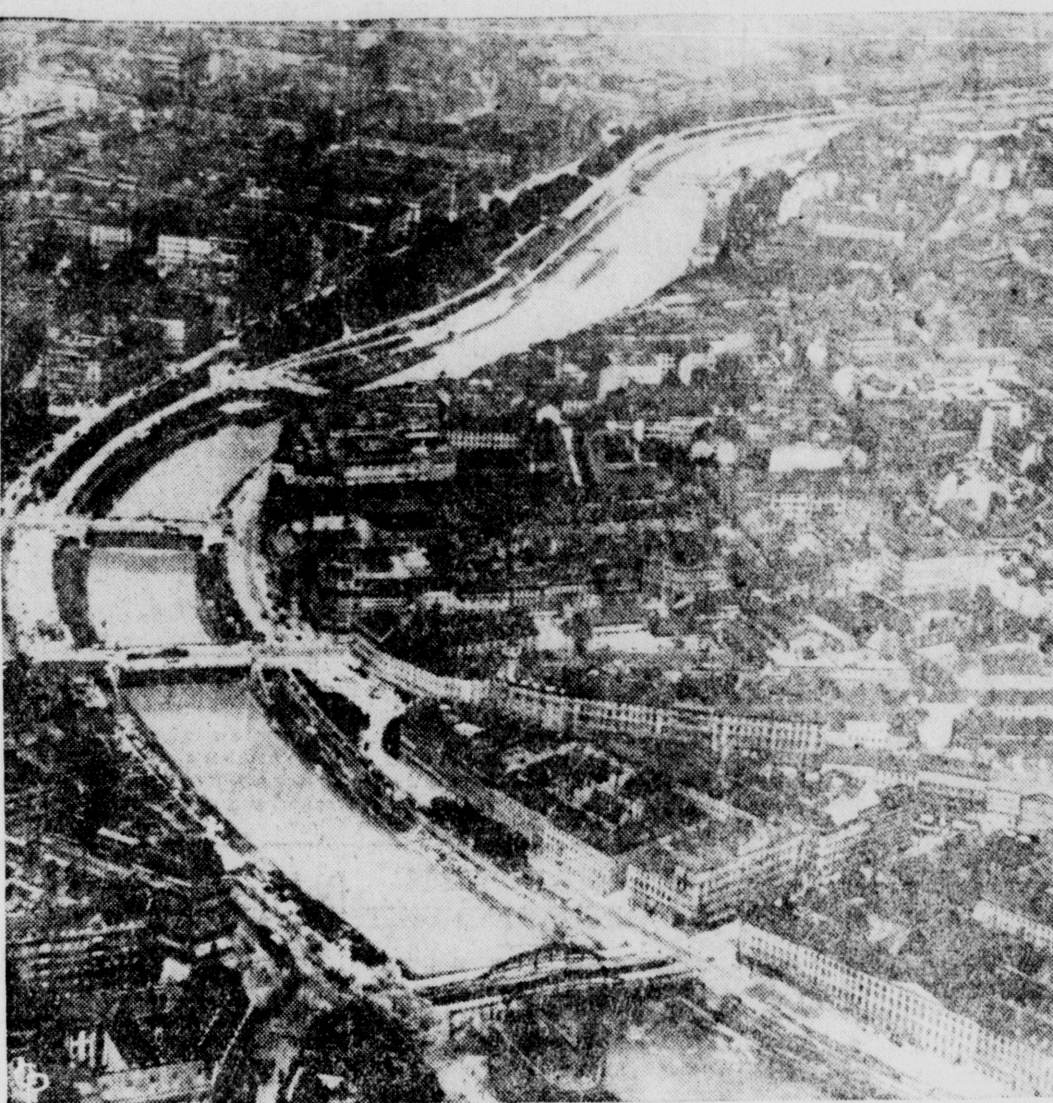

Tests Show Cows Like Phosphorous In Graze

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Soil chemists at Michigan State College have discovered that phosphorous in alfalfa is the cream in the coffee for Elsie, the cow.

Four and a half years of tests on 750 Michigan farms showed that cows, almost without exception, chose to graze on phosphorous-treated clover and alfalfa fields, to the neglect of the same roughage grown on untreated areas.

In most instances, researchers found, addition of phosphorous to the soil increased grain yields and enriched clover meadows to such an extent that from 10 to 30 per cent more livestock could be supported on the same acreage.

VIENNA, beautiful capital of what was Austria, is now in the path of the advancing Russian Armies which are fighting in the outskirts of the city. Vienna, 330 miles southeast of Berlin, lies on the right bank of the Danube river and is one of the great cities of Europe. Latest census figures listed Vienna's population as 1,918,462. It now is the second largest city in Germany, following annexation of Austria by the Germans. In this view the Danube canal winds peacefully through the city. Mother Kills 3 Children With Flaming Gasoline DEEP RIVER, Ia., April 7.—A 26-year-old farm woman, apparently worried over the possible drafting of her husband, fatally burned herself and three children yesterday, Poweshiek County Coroner W. R. Phillips said today.

Phillips said Mrs. Elsie Krakow poured gasoline and set fire to her six weeks old baby, Michael; Carol, 2, and Mary Ann, 5, and then ignited her gasoline-soaked clothing.

The tragedy was discovered by the husband and father, Carl Krakow, who was working near the house. Phillips said Krakow related that Mary Ann, her clothing aflame, ran screaming from the house. "Mother poured oil on us and set us on fire," Mary Ann died about six hours later.

250 JOB OPENINGS IN SALEM DISTRICT LISTED BY WMC

You needn't be an expert or a highly-skilled specialist to become one of the 250 men and women workers needed badly in Salem district factories, business houses and service establishments, Dr. Joseph E. Smith, area director of the War Manpower commission, pointed out today.

Qualifications for many of the jobs are allied so closely to everyday living that many a hobby or daily chore can be turned into the required experience for a wage-earner, Dr. Smith explained.

For instance, if you are able to make minor repairs to your own automobile, there is a well-paying job for you in a number of district garages, he pointed out.

And women with home nursing experience or knowledge gained from caring for members of their families should have no difficulty finding work as a practical nurse.

The man who has worried his wife for years with a cellar work shop can become an important cog in the war production machine by applying his mechanical abilities and some on-the-job training for an industrial job, the agency explained.

And persons with Victory Garden experience or a liking for outdoor work may enroll with the county farm agent for part-time jobs on the district's farms to help alleviate the national food shortage.

Cooking experience will qualify a woman to help out at the hospitals or in the city's hotels and restaurants, the WMC spokesman pointed out.

There are also openings for women who like to wield a scrub brush and bucket as working housekeepers in hotels or in general spring house-cleaning in response to requests from war-working housewives all over the area.

No man or woman should hide talent for every particle of job training, skilled or unskilled, can be put to use in bringing eventual victory a little closer.

Burning Oil Does Trick Where Bullets Failed To Oust Japs

By JAMES HUTCHESON

MANILA, April 7.—American engineers are burning Japanese from concrete pits and tunnels on Caballo Island by pouring oil on the enemy.

Caballo is Corregidor's barren little brother at the entrance to Manila bay.

A small force of Brig. Gen. William C. Chase's 38th division landed 11 days ago and quickly got a platform atop the dominant ridge forming the backbone of the island.

The Japanese cut off the Yanks by heavy firing from pits and tunnels which the Americans built before the war when Caballo was a U. S. fort.

The pits are 30 feet square and 20 deep with a 12-foot thick concrete wall. Steel doors block entrances. Americans tried for nine days to root out the Japanese. They showed the pits with grenades, mortars, dynamite charges and naval and land artillery fire. They poured burning chemical from fire bombs down the vents without apparent effect.

Finally an unidentified soldier suggested oil. Before the equipment was ready yesterday Japanese charged the small American force. The Yanks killed 86 while suffering few casualties themselves.

A huge pump was rigged with 1,000 feet of semi-flexible pipe. It was run up Caballo's rocky face.

The pump spewed a mixture of oil and gasoline into a pit. It gushed through a drain in the side of the cliff. Soldiers set it afire with tracer bullets and phosphorous shells lit the oil in the pit, making a roaring inferno above and below.

The heat from 2,400 gallons of flaming oil set off heavy explosions inside the tunnels. The heat treatment ended fire from that pit.

Third-Dimensional Sleeves

By EPSIE KINARD
NEW YORK—Because Chinese are clever at expressing nonchalant ease and finesse in costumes, their influence is felt in such spring fashions as the wrapover dress, the loose, straight jacket, the decorative cat and now the Mei Ling sleeve, named for Madame Chiang Kai-shek.

The "Mei Ling" which flows from a third-dimensional armhole, is significant not because here's a sleeve cut in a new way, but it helps to clinch the dolmanized silhouette—free and easy fullness released above a hitched-up belt and a slim skirt which is fast catching on. Interpreted in a group of afternoon dresses and jacketed costumes designed by Maurice Rentner—two of which are shown—the blousy sleeve and the bare neckline, also borrow from the Chinese, typify a new kind of high-styled simplicity.

In the black crepe afternoon dress, right, you see a subtle style made dramatic by means of line and detail limited to white accents of buttons, belt and saddle stitching which outlines third-dimensional armholes.

The beige basket weave wool, left, owes its distinction to the same easy silhouette. Here the Mei Ling sleeve is etched lightly with a welt seam, and dramatically accented with checked Guatemalan cotton turn-back cuffs.

Youtz, Miss Joanna Stoffer and Mrs. Albert Ryser; violin solo, Mr. Becknell; Irish monologue, Miss Betty Cigula; two selections of Swiss music, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ryser.

'EXCLUSIVE' LID MEETS ITS TWIN

EVERY WOMAN DREAMS IT, and it had to happen to Lady Diana Duff Cooper (left) at the gala opening of the Stage Door Canteen in Paris—of all places. Wearing her "exclusive" bonnet, a creation of pink wood straw and pink ribbon and black veil, she and her chapeau dominated the scene until the Marquise de Sedouy (right), former fashion writer, showed up with an identical lid. Thereafter, as you can see, neither the lady nor the marquise seemed quite happy. (International)

Hunching Sprouts Unsightly Wings

By ALICIA HART

"Wings"—those protruding shoulder blades which are despoilers of smooth round shoulders and often brought on by hunching—can be banished by a simple exercise.

The beauty of it—you merely raise shoulders to ear level and then roll them back and down—are the double benefits you reap, says radio's Gwen ("Crime Doctor") Barlow, who is getting her shoulders in shape for bareback fashions.

While the exercise is sloughing wings off your shoulders, she says, you'll find it also forcing you to throw out your chest and thus improving curves.

Another advantage is that you can practice it often and any time you choose. Gwen particularly recommends taking it to rout kinks from your spine if you sit hunching up over your work.

Nation Faces Worst Clothing Shortage Since Start Of War

By S. BURTON HEATH
And DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondents

WASHINGTON—We can keep secrets as well as the next fellow can, but this one has leaked out already in some mysterious fashion. There's evidence of a clothing shortage in the United States.

Mother wants a house dress. She says she hasn't a thing to put on her back. Father needs a white shirt to wear to church. Sister would look sweet in dotted swiss or voile. And baby brother can't go around, yet, without diapers. Papa's and big brother's work pants are disgracefully ragged and their work gloves just aren't any more. The rest of the family wardrobe is getting patchy, particularly when both laundering and dry cleaning take so long that they keep garments out of use for extended periods.

There is a clothing shortage here, though in any other country in the world today, eyes would pop almost out of heads if our retail stocks were suddenly made available there.

Many Items Disappear

The clothing situation, for the entire family, is in its worst condition since the war began. Item after item has disappeared from racks and shelves. Many desirable garments are going to be harder to find this summer and autumn than ever before.

But except in certain lines there really is no shortage. For almost everything that can't be had, there is a fairly acceptable substitute. In at least some instances supplies actually are greater than before the war, and it is only the properly intensified demand that makes many goods hard to obtain.

The most acute shortages, in order of tightness, are in work gloves, work clothing, children's clothing and women's stockings.

President, William Halverstad, vice president Richard Stiller; secretary, Emerson Hively; devotion leader, Carl Sebrill. County Agent Floyd Lower attended the meeting Tuesday evening and distributed bulletins. Projects were discussed.

Sunday School Gains At Tabernacle Are Reported

The Sunday school at the Assembly of God has increased 17 per cent over the previous year. It was revealed at the annual business meeting of the church last night at the church.

There was a gain of over $2,000 above last year, and a balance in all funds, the financial report showed.

Plans to liquidate the mortgage within the next two years, were approved by the congregation. This will put the church out of debt.

Rev. M. R. Seales, who organized this church nine years ago, believes the past year was the most successful. This year the congregation moved into another building, which had been remodeled and modernized.

NEW YORK—Because Chinese are clever at expressing nonchalance and finesse in costumes, their influence is felt in such spring fashions as the wrapover dress, the loose, straight jacket, the decorative coat and now the Mei Ling sleeve, named for Madame Chiang Kai-shek.

The "Mei Ling" which flows from a third-dimensional armhole, is significant not because here's a sleeve cut in a new way, but it helps to clinch the dolmanized silhouette—free and easy fullness released above

a hitched-up belt and a slim skirt—which is fast catching on. Interpreted in a group of afternoon dresses and jacketed costumes designed by Maurice Rentner—two of which are shown—the blousy sleeve and the bare neckline, also borrow from the Chinese, typify a new kind of high-styled simplicity.

In the black crepe afternoon dress, right, you see a subtle style made dramatic by means of line and detail limited to white accents of buttons, belt and saddle stitching which outlines third-dimensional armholes.

Household Hints

Unwrap meat as soon as it comes from the market. Wipe it off and place in the cold part of the refrigerator. It may be stored in a dish with a loose-fitting cover.

Grapefruit and prune juices in equal portions served cold make a refreshing beverage for any meal or between meal pick-up.

Grated raw carrots, diced apples and chopped green peppers are good combined with cabbage slaw.

Tender spinach leaves make a delectable salad. Wash, chill and toss. French dressing. Hard cooked eggs are a good addition.

Three tablespoons of cocoa plus a teaspoon of cooking fat can be substituted in most recipes that call for a two-ounce square of chocolate.

Cool jars of hot canned fruits out of a draft to prevent cracking.

'EXCLUSIVE' LID MEETS ITS TWIN

EVERY WOMAN DREAMS IT, and it had to happen to Lady Diana Duff Cooper (left) at the gala opening of the Stage Door Canteen in Paris—of all places. Wearing her "exclusive" bonnet, a creation of pink wood straw and pink ribbon and black veil, she and her chapeau dominated the scene until the Marquise de Sedouy (right), former fashion writer, showed up with an identical lid. Thereafter, as you can see, neither the lady nor the marquise seemed quite happy.

Hunching Sprouts Unsightly Wings

GWEN BARLOW: Sheds wings.

By ALICIA HART

"Wings"—those protruding shoulder blades which are despellers of smooth round shoulders and often brought on by hunching—can be banished by a simple exercise.

The beauty of it—you merely raise your shoulders to ear level and then roll them back and down—are the double benefits you reap, says radio's Gwen ("Crime Doctor") Barlow, who is getting her shoulders in shape for bareback fashions.

While the exercise is sloughing wings off your shoulders, she says, you'll find it also forcing you to throw out your chest and thus improving curves.

Another advantage is that you can practice it often and any time you choose. Gwen particularly recommends taking it to rout kinks from your spine if you sit hunched up over your work.

Nation Faces Worst Clothing Shortage Since Start Of War

By S. BURTON HEATH

And DOUGLAS LARSEN

NEA Staff Correspondents

WASHINGTON—We can keep secrets as well as the next fellow can, but this one has leaked out already in some mysterious fashion. There's evidence of a clothing shortage in the United States.

Mother wants a house dress. She says she hasn't a thing to put on her back. Father needs a white shirt to wear to church. Sister would look sweet in dotted swiss or voile. And baby brother can't go around, yet, without diapers. Papa's and big brother's ragged pants are disgracefully worn and their work gloves just aren't any more. The rest of the family wardrobe is getting patchy, particularly when both laundering and dry cleaning take so long that they keep garments out of use for extended periods.

There is a clothing shortage here, though in any other country in the world today, eyes would pop almost out of heads if our retail stocks were suddenly made available there.

Many Items Disappear

The clothing situation, for the entire family, is in its worst condition since the war began. Item after item has disappeared from racks and shelves. Many desirable garments are going to be harder to find this summer and autumn than ever before.

But except in certain lines there really is no shortage. For almost everything that can't be had, there is a fairly acceptable substitute. In at least some instances supplies actually are greater than before the war, and it is only the prosperity intensified demand that makes many goods hard to obtain.

The most acute shortages, in order of tightness, are in work gloves, work clothing, children's clothing and women's stockings.

College girls and their imitators are blamed for part of the trouble with work clothing. They are running around in denim slacks made with material that should have been used for work pants, shirts, overalls, frocks, etc. The Department of Labor says. But this is a secondary consideration. The military is to blame, if you insist.

The boys who are fighting the Nazis in Europe and the Japs in the Pacific require an enormous quantity of duck for tents and tarpaulins. They also are burning up vast numbers of heavy-duty tires that use cord made in competition with that duck.

Tire Cord Vital

By running the looms 16 hours a day, the WPB has kept a reasonable supply of tires going to the war fronts and has supplied about 80 per cent of the vital military need for duck. Half again as much fabric could be made—satisfying military demand and leaving enough for work gloves and clothing—if there were trained help to operate the mills a third shift. Since such help isn't available, the supply of denim for work clothing is down to around half of the pre-war quantity, and there are millions more workers among whom to divide it.

A fifth shortage, perhaps, is in shoes. The Army and Navy last year took enough leather to make 135,000,000 pairs of civilian shoes, though the leather made nowhere near as many military shoes. Civilians got 307 million pairs, of which 50 millions came out of carryover stock. Nevertheless, the year ended with more than one pair of ration type shoes for every man, woman and child left in stock, and OPA insists that there is no probability of a shoe shortage.

The Locusts Descend on Windsor

Folks up in Windsor, Ontario, are our good neighbors, but they're beginning to wonder on what side of the meat eight-ball they'll wind up if Detroiters continue their raids on Windsor's meat supplies. Typical of the city's markets is the scene above, showing a store crowded with Detroiters, who, with meat almost unobtainable on their side of the line, buy up everything in sight.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

NEUSTADT, Germany.—Hidden in tall pines of the Neustadt forest and unmarked by Allied bombs is a huge dynamite-producing plant, which until a week ago was turning out a half million shells and 5,500 tons of dynamite each month for Hitler's war machine.

The 2,000-acre plant, where more than 4,000 slave workers were guarded by 300 Nazi soldiers and scores of trained police dogs was overrun by First army troops who took it and countless stores of explosives in tact.

Made First Buzz Bombs

Captured with it was a 500-acre processing plant, where thousands of German mines, bazookas, depth charges and grenades were loaded. There also three buzzbombs were produced.

For six years this vast munitions center—its concrete roads and overhead pipes covered with camouflage nets—has been feeding Nazi armies with munitions.

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 7.—Bob Rothel, a 21-year-old rookie third baseman from Batavia in the Pony league, probably will open the baseball season at the "hot corner" for the Cleveland Indians.

He drew high praise from Manager Lou Boudreau after cracking out three hits, including a triple, in the last intra-squad game at Lafayette, Ind.

"Can't say from one training game to another," Lou asserted. "But right now Rothel is my choice to open the season."

Other training camp items: Philadelphia Phillies—Outfielder Vince DiMaggio, recently obtained from Pittsburgh in a trade, reported at Wilmington, Del. Camp anxious to get into uniform and play.

Chicago White Sox—Thornton Lee and Johnny Johnson nominated to pitch exhibition game against Detroit Tigers today.

Chicago Cubs—Bruins moved into Louisville today to meet American Association Colonels.

Philadelphia A's—First Baseman Fibber McGhee arrived at Frederick, Md. camp. Said delay in reporting was due to waiting until his son was born.

Pirates Meet Muncie

Pittsburgh—Art Cuccurullo, Ken Gables and Al Gerheuser were slated to pitch today against Muncie, Ind. Gas city team.

Cincinnati Reds—Homer by Outfielder Dick Sipek with two out in ninth gave Reds 5-4 triumph over Cubs.

Boston Braves—Johnny Hutchings, big 250-pound twirler, was scheduled to pitch against Senators today.

Boston Red Sox—Rookie Second Sacker Jack Tobin showed speed in traveling in all directions against Yankees.

Brooklyn Dodgers—Two Negro players, Terrill McAffie and Showboat Thomas, appeared at Bear Mountain camp, but club officials said it was impossible to comply with their request for a tryout because the day's program had already been arranged.

New York Yankees—Infielder George Stinnett clouted a homer as Yanks lost to Red Sox.

New York Giants—Sent Right-hander Bob Barthelson to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league on option.

Mack's Big Moment: 10 Runs In World Series Inning

Pilot of A's Has No Special Regulations

By AL VERMEER
NEA Staff Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md., Connie Mack, commencing his 61st season in baseball, does not have to sit down and ponder when you ask what was the greatest moment of his celebrated career.

"It was the seventh inning of the fourth game of our 1929 World Series with the Cubs," relates the lean, 82-year-old pilot of the Athletics. "For six innings it looked like a very blue day. Charley Root held us to two hits, was breezing along on an 8-0 lead. You know what happened after that. All of a sudden we put together 10 hits for 10 runs, beating the Cubs, 10-8."

That was the most astounding rally in all World Series history. The Chicagoes never recovered from the body blow, lost the series in five games.

Mr. Mack, still bright-eyed and sharp-witted as ever lays down no special rules for his long and active life, other than regularity in eating and sleeping. He enjoys three squares a day, including the familiar thermos bottle of soup which Mrs. Mack tucks under his arm every morning for his lunch. Like anyone else, he enjoys a husky steak when he can get one.

Night baseball threatened to disrupt Mr. Mack's sleeping program, but that was settled by bringing a couch into his offices at the ball park. Now Mr. Mack—everybody calls him mister—takes a quick snooze before night

Still Runs the Works In His 61st Season

—dinners, speeches, luncheons etc., but Mrs. Mack put a stop to that after his serious illness of a few years back.

For the first time in his illustrious career, Mr. Mack remained away from Shibe Park, practically refrained from talking baseball all winter, which he spent with the misuses in Los Angeles. The rest did him a world of good.

Mr. Mack runs the works at 82, talks contract with the players, and they assure you he can wage a splendid argument across the desk.

There is a yarn about Eric McNair, the former infielder, who had just enjoyed a good season and thought he would talk contract with the old gentleman then and there, rather than wait until the following spring. Mr. Mack duled Boob McNair point for point, told him financial difficulties made it impossible for the Philadelphia to give him the raise he wanted.

Finally the Mississippian blew his temper, tossed a 50-cent piece on the desk and strode from the room, saying: "Here, get yourself a meal on me!"

That didn't set well with Mr. Mack.

The following spring Boob McNair signed for a $1500 cut.

TWO LOOP CHAMPS TO BATTLE IT OUT

Southworth Says Browns Always a Question, Will Not Venture Guess.

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, April 7.—The American League Champion St. Louis Browns will meet the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals in a seven-game series starting today in an effort to reverse the National League's 4-2 decision in the 1944 World Series.

Both clubs are likely choice to meet again in this year's fall classic. Neither Manager Luke Sewell nor Billy Southworth ventured any predictions on outcome of the annual city affair. Southworth adding that "you can never tell about those Browns."

Pete Gray To Start
Two newcomers who hold the key to much of the Browns hope for a second consecutive pennant will start in outfield. Pete Gray, one-armed rookie from Memphis, will make his first St. Louis appearance in left field, and Boris (Babe) Martin, American association batting king, will flank Veteran Mike Kreevich in right.

The Browns' opening pitcher will be Sig Jakucki, with Frank Mancuso on the receiving end. For the Cardinals Blix Donnelly and Walker Cooper will be the starting battery.

Both managers have picked rookies for their second hurler of the day—Al La Macchia from Toledo for the Browns and Texas Jack Creel for the Red Birds.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Joe McCarthy, the no-longer silent manager of the Yankees, says that baseball will look better this year because the player won't have to fill the shoes of a departed star. Last season, Joe explains, the kids were trying to bear down too hard and as a result didn't settle down and play their own game until mid-season. The gates surrounding the Giants' training quarters at Lakewood, N. J., are locked at midnight—not to keep the players in but to keep the deer out. Gosh, we knew some of those boys were green—but.

Backward dopes, these dumb pugs and rasslers, aren't they?

SHORTS AND SHELLS

The once-adjourned National Football league meeting has gone through an entire day and so far George (Wetwash) Marshall hasn't walked out because it was "illegal". When he was informed that he was father of boy triplets, George Ervin of Waco, Tex., merely commented: "Twice more and I'll have a baseball club." Lieut. Hal Surface combined business with pleasure when he escorted a civilian coaching troupe to Bermuda for the Army. Hal took time out to win the Bermuda doubles championship (with Capt. P. Potter) to prove to the soldiers he knew what he was talking about.

SEDVICE DEPARTMENT

Buff Donelli, who only had charge of a big physical training program at Duquesne U. for 13 years, is about to leave the Sampson Naval Training center for the physical instructors' school at Bainbridge. Lieut. G. A. Busch, Jr., former Michigan State U. golfer, claims he has acquired all the comforts of a $100-a-month apartment in Italy with furniture constructed from bomb crating, ammunition boxes and airplane fuselages. He hasn't been able to make a golf course out of that stuff.

Global Ball Programs

Involve Mass of Titles

WICHITA—No fewer than 32 national and territorial baseball championships will be decided in the 1945 global program of the National Baseball Congress. In this country the title will be determined in the national tournament in Wichita, Aug. 10-22. Clubs will first compete in 48 state tournaments.

Details, including listings of leading teams and players, are contained in the just published 1945 National Baseball Guide for non-professionals.

Religious Rookie In City of Many Churches

BEAR MOUNTAIN—Brooklyn Dodgers will have to play Sunday games without the services of Leroy Plund, 25-year-old recruit, right-handed pitcher, whose contract stipulates he is not to appear at ball parks on the Sabbath. Plund is a Wheaton collegian who split last season between Columbus and Mobile. President Branch Rickey couldn't object, as he has always held himself aloof from baseball parks on Sunday.

A Dogleg Split

CINCINNATI—As a bowler shot at the 5-10 split, a full-grown boxer dashed out on the alley. Hearing the warning cries, the dog turned and faced the foul line, allowing the ball to roll between his front and hind legs and click off the split.

Cleveland's New Third Baseman Still A Big Question

BOB ROTHEL IN LINE FOR SPOT, MANAGER SAYS

Boudreau's Mind Not Made Up, But Figures Rookie Is Tops

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 7.—Bob Rothel, a 21-year-old rookie third baseman from Batavia in the Pony league, probably will open the baseball season at the "hot corner" for the Cleveland Indians.

He drew high praise from Manager Lou Boudreau after cracking out three hits, including a triple, in the last intra-squad game at Lafayette, Ind.

"Can't say from one training game to another," Lou asserted. "But right now Rothel is my choice to open the season."

Other training camp items: Philadelphia Phillies—Outfielder Vince DiMaggio, recently obtained from Pittsburgh in a trade, reported at Wilmington, Del. Camp anxious to get into uniform and play.

Chicago White Sox—Thornton Lee and Johnny Johnson nominated to pitch exhibition game against Detroit Tigers today.

Chicago Cubs—Bruins moved into Louisville today to meet American Association Colonels.

Philadelphia A's—First Baseman Fliber McGhee arrived at Frederick, Md. camp. Said delay in reporting was due to waiting until his son was born.

Pirates Meet Manzie
Pittsburgh—Art Cucurullo, Ken Gables and Al Gerbeuser were slated to pitch today against Muncie, Ind., Gas city team.

Cincinnati Reds—Homer by Outfielder Dick Sipek with two out in ninth gave Reds 3-4 triumph over Cubs.

Boston Braves—Johnny Hutchings, big 250-pound twirler, was scheduled to pitch against Senators today.

Boston Red Sox—Rookie Second Sacker Jack Tobin showed speed in traveling in all directions against Yankees.

Brooklyn Dodgers—Two Negro players, Terrill McDuffie and Shovee Thomas, appeared at Bear Mountain camp, but club officials said it was impossible to comply with their request for a tryout because the day's program had already been arranged.

New York Yankees—Infielder George Stinewick clouted a homer as Yanks lost to Red Sox.

New York Giants—Sent Right-hander Bob Bartholomew to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league on option.

Pilot of A's Has No Special Regulations

By AL VERMEER

NEA Staff Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md.—Connie Mack, commencing his 61st season in baseball, does not have to sit down and ponder when you ask what was the greatest moment of his celebrated career.

"It was the seventh inning of the fourth game of our 1929 World Series with the Cubs," relates the lean, 82-year-old pilot of the Athletics. "For six innings it looked like a very blue day. Charley Root held us to two hits, was breezing along on an 8-0 lead. You know what happened after that. All of a sudden we put together 10 hits for 10 runs, beating the Cubs, 10-8."

That was the most astounding rally in all World Series history. The Chicagoes never recovered from the body blow, lost the series in five games.

Mr. Mack, still bright-eyed and sharp-witted as ever lays down no special rules for his long and active life, other than regularity in eating and sleeping. He enjoys three squares a day, including the familiar thermos bottle of soup which Mrs. Mack tucks under his arm every morning for his lunch.

Like anyone else, he enjoys a husky steak when he can get one.

Night baseball threatened to disrupt Mr. Mack's sleeping program, but that was settled by bringing a couch into his office at the ball park. Now Mr. Mack—everybody calls him mister—takes a quick snooze before night games, shows up on the field just before game time. He used to have a brisk social life on the side

TWO LOOP CHAMPS TO BATTLE IT OUT

Southworth Says Browns Always a Question, Will Not Venture Guess.

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, April 7.—The American League Champion St. Louis Browns will meet the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals in a seven-game series starting today in an effort to reverse the National League's 4-2 decision in the 1944 World Series.

Both clubs are likely choice to meet again in this year's fall classic. Neither Manager Luke Sewell nor Billy Southworth ventured any predictions on outcome of the annual city affair, Southworth adding that "you can never tell about those Browns."

Pete Gray To Start
Two newcomers who hold the key to much of the Browns hope for a second consecutive pennant will start in outfield. Pete Gray, one-armed rookie from Memphis, will make his first St. Louis appearance in left field, and Boris (Babe) Martin, American association batting king, will flank veteran Mike Kreevich in right.

The Browns' opening pitcher will be Sig Jakucki, with Frank Mancuso on the receiving end. For the Cardinals, Bill Donnelly and Walker Cooper will be the starting battery.

Both managers have picked rookies for their second hurler of the day—Al La Macchia from Toledo for the Browns and Texas Jack Creel for the Red Birds.

Most of them, he said, were "very favorable" to the suggestion that the Army take over federally-inspected packing plants that have been forced to close and operate them for the Army's own meat supply. Such action, he said, would break the growing glut of range cattle and increase the flow from packers, at the same time easing the general supply.
